From a young age, Exie knew there was more to the things that went bump in the night: She knew they were the souls of those who have passed on wanting to relate to those who were still living. Of course, as a young person, this knowledge was sometimes terrifying, especially when these spirits were reaching out to Exie specifically, and adults weren't often much help in understanding her gifts. As she reached adulthood, Exie began to explore the relationship between the dead and the living. Her paranormal encounters, combined with years of research and study, resulted in her best-selling book, Welcome to my Para'Normal' Life, which was followed by When the Dead Come Calling.

Since then, Exie has become a regular on the paranormal circuit, speaking on her experiences communicating with the departed. As she came to realize that her gifts could offer comfort and guidance to the living, she worked with her spirit guide to create a method to contact specific passed souls for their loved ones who need their guidance.

Her readings consist of "messages and images from my guide. She brings in your family, i.e. parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins, friends, neighbors, and past pets of all kinds. I do not get messages of pending death, so I will not relate anything of the sort. But I will get personal messages from your guide for you. My readings are very accurate and loving. I do not typically get future events but, occasionally, it does happen. I get messages from past people in your life. These message may be of an apologetic nature, or of love. They may even have an old joke for you. I love meeting your family and friends, and am honored to bring them forward for you."

Exie first worked with Michigan Psychic Fair when she began promoting her book. She is now thrilled to be able to offer her mediumship skills to fair-goers.
